"The real, the fundamental work of the Educational Alliance, of which it must be more proud than anything else, is that of making American citizens. The Educational Alliance has been engaged these many years in interpreting America to the immigrant Jew, and it has done no small part of the work of revealing the immigrant Jew to America. Its work has been one of interpretation and adjustment. Its task has been that of interpreting the democracy and the institutions of this country to the immigrant in terms of service, and in demonstrating to the immigrant Jew that there is no essential difference between loyalty to his race, and the ideals of that race, and devotion to America."

JOHN PURROY MITCHEL

"We would be very happy if we could give in some succinct, forceful and yet comprehensive way the aims, purposes and scope of the Educational Alliance.

We neither feed, clothe nor shelter. We do not provide aid for the sick, relief for the decrepit, nor a home for the orphan, and yet we perform every function which touches life outside of these physical necessities, by endeavoring to create an atmosphere for the propagation and cultivation of all the traits and virtues that tend to make men and women useful and worthy members of the community.

It is our aim and purpose to offer through the activities in our building that spiritual part of life which the confined quarters many of our constituents must dignify with the name of home cannot supply: to wield such influences as are essential, yes, indispensable, for imbuing manhood and womanhood with self-respect and dignity; to awaken a sense of civic responsibility, which the enjoyment of liberty imposes; to impress upon people who have lived under conditions where our form of government is not understood, that liberty is not license; that a republic can only be maintained by obedience to laws enacted, as they can only be by the will of the majority."

"The Educational Alliance is designed to attack the causes which are responsible for the great demands made upon our charities. The task is stupendous. Are not the results sought to be achieved, cheap at any cost?"
